CARE OF APPLIANCES

Many of you probably received portable appliances for Christmas. Would you like to get the best possible mileage and length of life out of that appliance? If so, the following common sense tips may be helpful reminders of how you should handle your appliances:

1. Cool appliances and clean soon after use. Some may be immersed in water and others may not. Be sure to check your use-care manual for its recommendation.

2. Set thermostat on heating appliances when preheating is recommended. Place food in appliance as soon as desired temperature is reached to avoid overheating.

3. Motor driven appliances may need oiling. Check your use-care manual for specific instructions. Removal parts, such as the cutting blade on a can opener, should be cleaned frequently. Be careful not to drop any small appliance, especially a motor driven one.

4. Controls should be in an off position before connecting and disconnecting. Grasp wall plug end of cord to connect or remove. Do not pull on the cord.

5. Remove salted and acid liquids or foods from aluminum utensils, and avoid soaking in strong detergent solutions to prevent pitting.

6. Remove hard water rings from aluminum interiors with a soap pad or boil a solution of two tablespoons of cream of tartar to one quart of water.

7. Use silver polish or a recommended commercial product to clean appliance exteriors. Rubbing alcohol is helpful in removing light grease stains or finger prints from shiny exterior surfaces. Apply full strength with paper towel or soft cotth on cool appliance.

8. Non-stick surfaces should be treated with care. Nylon, wooden, or plastic coated utensils are best used with this type cookware.

9. Appliances without the non-stick surfaces may be cleaned with soap-filled steel wool pads or mild abrasives. Stainless steel utensils keep their good looks and are easy to clean, but since this metal is a poor conductor of heat, it should be aluminum or copper clad for even heat distribution.

10. Your handy electric helpers are only as easy to use as they are to reach. Provide adequate wiring and storage space nearest the point of first use.

Should you have questions about the care and use of a particular appliance, you may call (352-8244) or write (P. O. Box 488, Appomattox, Va. 24522) the Appomattox County Extension Office. It is always a pleasure to hear from you.

Daughters of Confederacy

Honor Mrs. Runner

(The following article appeared in a Sandusky, Ohio newspaper on December 14, 1976 following the 90th birthday celebration of Mrs. George Runner on December 12th.

Mrs. Runner sent this write-up to her cousin, Mrs. Rachel F. Lawson, and wrote, "My 90th birthday was surely my greatest. It was all such a wonderful surprise. my home was just like a "behive" from noon until mid-night. Most every member of my family was there. I did not deserve all of this celebration but was most appreciative. I didn't feel very tired after all of the excitement but just plain happy. I had several long distance calls including yours. I refused to have my picture in the paper."

Mrs. Runner is spending two months in Akron, Ohio with her son, Jack, and his family.)

"Mrs. George Runner's grandfather was Colonel George W. Abbott, an officer in the Confederate Army during the War Between The States.

A native of Appomattox, Va., Mrs. Runner was the founder of the Johnson's Island Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy. She lives at 1110 5th St.

The national DOC organization recently honored the 90-year old woman with a medal of honor for her efforts in having the Confederate cemetery on Johnson's Island turned over to the government for perpetual care.

"Please don't give me all the credit," said the modest woman. "I could never have done it without the other members of our chapter. They deserve the credit."

The island cemetery is the final resting place for 205 Confederate soldiers who died while being held prisoners by the Federal soldiers.

"The Cincinnati DOC chapter incorporated to purchase the cemetery to maintain it properly," said the white-haired lady with a soft southern accent.

As the numbers of members in the Cincinnati chapter dwindled, Mrs. Runner and the local chapter members convinced them that the government would be able to provide perpetual care for the cemetery.

"It was officially turned over to a government officer in 1933 during special ceremonies on the island," she reminisced.

"It was a very happy day for all of us. There was even live radio coverage from a station in Cleveland," she added.

The niece of several Confederate officers, she was born in the Virginia town that was the site of the south's surrender.

"My grandmother's house was taken over by the Federal soldiers for use as a hospital as they marched into the town, " she said.

"The southerners were never bitter about the war, it was the 11 years of reconstruction when the carpetbaggers came in and took over that made us so mad. They were supposed to be there to help but they were really a hindrance to our rebuilding efforts."

She told of a carpetbagger who walked into her uncle's house without permission.

"He spotted my cousin's baby ring lying on a dresser and threw it to the ground and stamped on it, breaking it into many pieces. Those things weren't necessary."

She spoke with pride about the gold medal and the "flourishing chapter we had here until so many of us up and got old."

The three other local chapter members are: Mrs. Justin Rogers, Mrs. Walter Johnson and Mrs. William Dwelle.

We thought you should know... that in the area of medical malpractice suits, in one state, ten times as many million-dollar awards have been made since 1970 than in all the years before. The growing volume of such suits is adding more than $3 billion to the nation's annual cost of health care, according to HEW.
What's the point? The point is, this is just one of the many circumstances helping to push the cost of insurance beyond the reach of many.
You can help by talking to your neighbors and friends, writing your representatives in government and contacting your insurance commissioner. Or, by talking to us.
Then maybe you won't just blame your insurance company and your agent.
The more people who understand the problem, the better prepared we'll all be to work out the solutions.
